

NBHS 1952 Unveiling of WWII Memorial Plaques

On Saturday 20 September 1952, a ceremony was held at NBHS where Major-General Ivan Dougherty unveiled plaques, on either side of the front entrance, to commemorate 96 former students of the school who died during service in World War II. At the same ceremony Mrs B Jeffries, mother of Captain C S Jeffries VC, planted a tree to commemorate the World War I deeds of former students. A similar tree, on the other side of the entrance, was planted by Mr G T Grossman, who lost his son, a former student, in the Battle of Britain. In a similar ceremony in 2014, almost 60 years to the day later, additional plaques will be unveiled to commemorate a further 36 former students, not previously identified, who also died during service in World War II. Fatal casualties from the Korean War and Vietnam War, one for each conflict, will also be recorded.

These additional names were found, and the 2014 ceremony organised, due to the diligent forensic efforts of Year of '57 Old Boy Bill Storer.
